Creative Adaptability is a unique educational program - the only one of its kind in the United States. It provides opportunities for students to understand the business of creativity by giving them hands-on experience in project building. We provide students unparalleled access to accomplished creative specialists, so that they do not make “student films.” Instead, our classes will collaborate on professionally produced films, and will graduate with actual film credits.

As the program matures, we expect to extend this opportunity into videogames, animation and many other media. Our ultimate goal is to nurture student talent, and to produce projects created by students, with direct professional collaboration. We want to teach our students to be producers. We want to give them creative confidence, which directly correlates to creative accomplishment. We want to teach them how to move easily across media, so that they understand the dynamics of film, animation, television, games, comics, new media and more.

Fall 2016 film production course
MEBU4490 /05
Mondays 5:00pm - 7:45pm

For more information please contact
Samantha Lane at slane16@kennesaw.edu

Students will receive course credit for MEBUS, COM, CGDD and several other disciplines!